Living Donors: The best hope for many transplant patients

The challenge for many people, in terms of committing to being a Living Donor, is in making sure they are not burdened financially for their selfless act of compassion.

Removing the financial barriers to living donation

In situations that include a Living Donor, the organ recipient's insurance usually covers the donor's medical expenses, including evaluation, surgery and follow-up medical appointments. That said, there are certain expenses insurance may not cover. Thankfully there is NFT!

We work with Living Donors to bridge the gaps in financial coverage they may encounter by covering the costs of lost wages, uncovered pre- and post-medical expenses, travel assistance, pharmaceuticals and more.

Just as important – because the National Organ Transplant Act prohibits individuals from profiting from organ donation – working with NFT ensures that you, as a donor, are fully compliant with all laws and regulations governing organ donation.
